

NEWGEN EQUITY LONG-SHORT FUND LP CLASS F (NGLS)

DECEMBER 2024 NEWSLETTER

NEWGEN

ASSET MANAGEMENT

FUND OVERVIEW

The NewGen Equity Long-Short LP Class F Fund (NGLS) seeks to balance steady risk-adjusted performance with capital preservation, in order to deliver a unique return stream that can provide real diversification benefits. The NGLS aims to achieve this by targeting persistent structural inefficiencies that exist in the equity markets and are particularly prevalent in Canada. In order to minimize downside volatility, the Fund adheres to disciplined risk management targets, with a highly liquid portfolio and defensive exposures (market and sector). The Fund's active management style is based on an investment process that merges both trading and fundamental analysis and sources Alpha (excess return) from stock-specific ideas with catalysts (i.e. corporate updates, financings, index addition/deletions, clean-ups/blocks, strategic reviews, M&A, etc) over a short and medium-term time horizon. The portfolio is typically concentrated around 40-60 positions that are balanced between both longs and shorts. Through this portfolio composition, net exposures generally range from 20-40%, thereby minimizing Beta (systematic risk).

MONTHLY COMMENTARY

The NGLS LP Class F returned -0.88% in December (12.45% YTD). Stocks checked back in December, selling off in response to a stronger USD and higher yields, a result of concerns regarding stickier levels of inflation and looming policy uncertainty. Commodities were mixed on the month with gold flat and oil moving back above US$70. Bitcoin flirted above US$100 k in the month before closing below its high-water mark. All TSX sectors finished down in December, with higher rates and heavy tax-loss selling leaning on sectors such as Communication Services (-11%), Real Estate (-6.4%) and Materials (-5.5%). Overall, 2024 was a robust year for equities. Major indices in the US produce back-to-back double-digit returns, while the TSX finished +18%, its highest annual return in the last three years. Prevailing trends throughout the year saw fears regarding the state of the consumer, elevated interest rates, hot geopolitics, and the Presidential election give way to the bullish narratives of a lower rate path, resilience of the US economy, a boom in the AI mega trend and optimism regarding lower taxes and regulation. In commodities, gold was the standout performer, finishing the year +27%, shy of its all-time highs reached in October '24. Energy and copper were more muted, ending the year +2% and +3%, respectively. Bitcoin's resurgence was notable, posting +124% gains, its second consecutive year of triple digit returns. The TSX's gains for the year were led by Technology (+38%), Financials (+25%), and Materials (+19%), while Communication Services (-26.5%) was the only sector to finish in the red. Some noteworthy winners from the month included: (1) long Blackberry (BB-TSX), which announced a divestiture of a business unit for greater than expected proceeds along with the rebrand of its QNX business unit, sparking optimism for renewed growth; (2) Long Capital Power (CPX-TSX), which successfully completed a $460 MM capital raise that is expected to be directed towards M&A, and continues to benefit from supportive conditions regarding power needs to fuel ongoing AI and data centre builds; (3) long Valeura Energy (VLE-TX), which saw continued momentum after a positive tax ruling and benefitted from ongoing buying of stock by a large shareholder in the market.
