

FUND OVERVIEW

The NewGen Focused Alpha Fund is a concentrated long-short Canadian equity fund that targets strong absolute returns from its 20-25 core positions. The NG FA fund merges fundamental analysis with an event driven approach to identify alpha opportunities in the extremely inefficient Canadian equity market. The manager places a strong emphasis on portfolio liquidity in order to be able to de-risk and preserve capital in adverse market conditions.

STRATEGY

The NG FA fund is an opportunistic long-short Canadian equity strategy with targeted annualized returns of 10-15%. The portfolio is made up of two kinds of trades: 1. Core Holdings: 10-15 long and short positions that the manager believes to be mispriced, and have definable catalysts set to transpire in the next 12-24 months. Through rigorous research and careful monitoring, these fundamentally driven positions have the ability to generate outsized returns. 2. Opportunistic Trades: These are short-term trading-oriented positions [clean-ups/blocks, financings, dividend cuts, index deletions, M&A, etc.] that provide the ability to generate strong uncorrelated returns in a shortened time frame [days to weeks]. The portfolio is typically concentrated around 20-25 long and short positions and targets a net long exposure of 60-80% on average.

MONTHLY COMMENTARY

The NewGen Focused Alpha Fund (Class F) returned 0.02% in October (25.83% YTD). October 2025 was a month of cautious optimism and resilience for North American markets amid ongoing political and economic uncertainties. The S&P 500 advanced 2.3% over the month, closing near all-time highs around 6,840. The NASDAQ surged 4.7%, buoyed by strong performances in megacap tech stocks like Nvidia, which in late October became the first company to reach $5 trillion in market value. Canada's TSX recorded its sixth consecutive month of gains, buoyed by AI optimism, which propelled the technology sector to double-digit performance. The market's winning streak was tested early in the month amidst the beginning of a US government shutdown and news that the US administration would increase its tariff rate on goods from China. However, sentiment recovered on news of a trade framework between the US and China after a meeting between the two countries' respective leaders. Central bank policy remained accommodative as both the BoC and US Fed cut rates to their lowest level in the last three years. In commodities, oil prices softened due to OPEC+ output increases and subdued global demand forecasts, while copper saw a rally fueled by supply concerns. Gold continued to climb, reaching an all-time high of US$4,356/oz before finishing the month just above US$4,000/oz. Uranium prices dipped slightly from September's high but remained elevated due to ongoing supply cuts from major producers and rising nuclear power demand forecasts. The US dollar was slightly firmer while yields finished a touch lower. Across the TSX, Technology (+13.8%), Health Care (+4.1%) and Utilities (+4%) led, while Materials (-5%), Real Estate (-4.3%) and Consumer Staples (-1.3%) lagged. Some noteworthy winners from the month included: (1) long Canaccord Genuity (CF-TSX), which appreciated in response to reports from the media discussing a potential sale of its UK wealth management business, (2) long First Phosphate Corp (PHOS-TSX), which benefited from increased sentiment surrounding security of supply of domestic critical minerals, and (3) long Kraken Robotics (PNG-TSX), which continues to be recognized for its position as a leading supplier to allied countries for key naval surveillance equipment and subsea power systems.
