

FUND OVERVIEW

The NewGen Primary Commodity Fund LP is a Canadian feeder fund that invests directly into Primary Commodity Fund Ltd. (PCF), an externally managed, Bermuda-based hedge fund. The Fund is designed to generate attractive risk-adjusted returns with low correlation to traditional asset classes by actively trading physical and financial commodity markets, with a particular focus on strategic and critical metals.

PCF OVERVIEW

The PCF master fund employs a supply-chain-driven commodity trading strategy that is fundamentally distinct from directional macro or long-only commodity approaches. Through a strategic partnership with the Traxys Group, a leading global metals merchant and physical commodities trader with over 100 years of operating history, the Fund benefits from privileged access to real-time market intelligence across storage, logistics, trade flows, and global customer-supplier networks. This relationship provides a durable informational and execution advantage that is rarely available outside major proprietary trading desks and enables the Fund to identify pricing dislocations, arbitrage opportunities, and emerging supply-demand imbalances in markets that are largely opaque and off-exchange. PCF also utilizes an internally developed LLM that integrates proprietary data with global regulatory developments, macroeconomic signals, and end-to-end supply-chain intelligence to accelerate market timing and support disciplined data-driven decision-making.

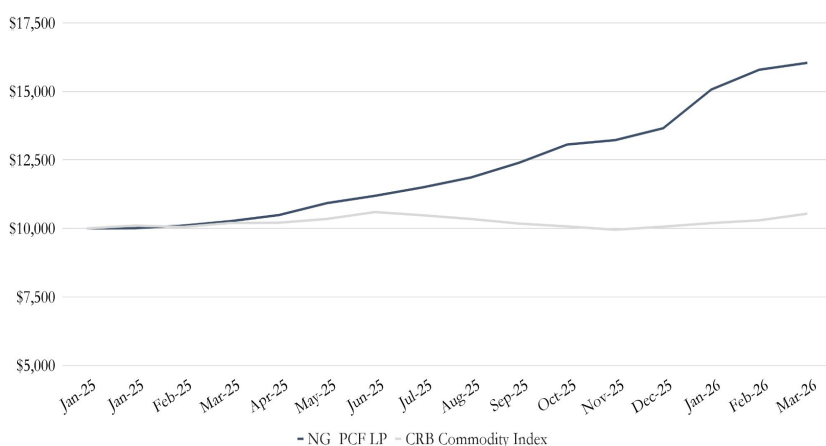

STRATEGY

- Physical & Futures Trading: Positions in both physical markets (through Traxys' logistics and customer network of 2,000 suppliers / 1,900 buyers) and listed futures, enabling liquidity + direct market access.
- Proprietary AI (SD-92): System processes 38M words in 6 hours, analyzing geopolitical shifts, supply chains, and market sentiment at superhuman scale to anticipate inflection points.
- Focus Areas: Strategic metals (tungsten, gallium, germanium, NdPr, rhodium, palladium, etc.) with strong price inelasticity and rising geopolitical importance.
- Macro Tailwinds: Decarbonization, AI's energy intensity, defense build-up, supply chain fragmentation, and underinvestment in mining all support long-term upside.

INVESTMENT HIGHLIGHTS

- Distinct Strategy: The Fund employs a supply-chain-driven commodity trading strategy that is fundamentally distinct from directional macro or long-only commodity funds.
- Traxys Partnership: Through a partnership with the Traxys Group (a leading global metals merchant and physical commodities trader), the Fund benefits from privileged access to real-time market intelligence across storage, logistics, trade flows, and customer-supplier networks worldwide. This relationship provides a unique informational advantage rarely available outside major proprietary trading desks.
- Proprietary LLM Platform: In addition, the Fund is utilizing a proprietary LLM-powered trading platform in partnership with Arbor Ventures, a global venture capital firm with a depth of expertise in fintech. This system integrates Traxys' proprietary data with global regulatory, macro, and supply-chain inputs to identify price anomalies, dislocations, and geopolitical catalysts with speed and precision, thereby enhancing the team's data-driven decision-making process and trading edge.
- Focus on Strategic Minerals: The Fund is especially well positioned to capitalize on structural trends in strategic and critical minerals, which are central to energy transition, AI infrastructure, and defense supply chains. Around the world, governments are stockpiling, incentivizing domestic production, and imposing export controls on these commodities. With Traxys among the largest global traders of rare earths and strategic metals, the Fund can trade, store, and arbitrage these markets directly. This is an area of the market that is typically inaccessible to most institutional and retail investors.
- Return Profile: The result is a highly differentiated, non-correlated return stream that is structured to mitigate downside volatility, while offering direct exposure to one of the most compelling themes of this decade.
